TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

For the last 11 years, while building my log home, I’ve been renting a trailer to live in, plus a large storage container. Both have been filled to capacity with materials with which to build this dream of mine, such as custom made sinks, antique stained glass windows, chandeliers, etc. Even though you cannot see a structure on my property, most of what needs to be done before a structure can be erected has been completed: purchase of logs, plans, 2 wells, well pump, fees to LA county, architect, geological engineer, structural engineer, electrical consultation, grading a mad + pad + well sight + witcher, tape map. The last piece, your reps keep talking about a what they’re going to take away. My question is this. And I’d really like a response from you on this question. How do you plan on compensating me for this loss? Putting up the logs is just the last stage of all this preparation. I love the forest and the animals that live within it. May God guide you as you make this decision that could alter their lives + mine. God will on your part would help us all.
