The existing view to the northeast toward the Borrego Springs Peaker site east of the existing Borrego Springs Substation. In spite of the structurally complex substation, the landscape is predominantly natural in appearance.

This image presents a visual simulation of the Borrego Springs Peaker located to the east of the existing substation. Coyote Mountain and the Santa Rosa Mountains beyond provide a backdrop to the structurally prominent peaker.